

Ezra & Nehemiah

“Did you hear the news? We’re going home!” The word must have spread quickly that King Cyrus had issued a decree allowing many of the exiled Jews to return to Judah. Older people remembered what it was like before the Babylonians came. Younger people would have known only what they had experienced living under Babylonian and Persian rule, though they had likely been told stories from their elders about God’s promise to restore their nation. God kept His promise to restore the Israelites. The returning exiles would face tough times during the coming decades as they sought to reestablish their nation. But God had a plan to care for His people. He would send Ezra and Nehemiah to help rebuild Jerusalem and to lead the people to true repentance, leading to full restoration in their relationship with God. Our children will learn that confession and repentance of sin is required of those desiring to have a right relationship with God.

Main Passages Ezra & Nehemiah

Memory Verse II Chronicles 7:14 (NIV)

Younger version

... if my people ... pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I ... will forgive their sin...

Older version

... if my people who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.

Ezra & Nehemiah

“Did you hear the news? We’re going home!” The word must have spread quickly that King Cyrus had issued a decree allowing many of the exiled Jews to return to Judah. Older people remembered what it was like before the Babylonians came. Younger people would have known only what they had experienced living under Babylonian and Persian rule, though they had likely been told stories from their elders about God’s promise to restore their nation. God kept His promise to restore the Israelites. The returning exiles would face tough times during the coming decades as they sought to reestablish their nation. But God had a plan to care for His people. He would send Ezra and Nehemiah to help rebuild Jerusalem and to lead the people to true repentance, leading to full restoration in their relationship with God. Our children will learn that confession and repentance of sin is required of those desiring to have a right relationship with God.

Main Passages Ezra & Nehemiah

Memory Verse II Chronicles 7:14 (NIV)

Younger version

... if my people ... pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I ... will forgive their sin...

Older version

... if my people who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.

Ezra & Nehemiah

“Did you hear the news? We’re going home!” The word must have spread quickly that King Cyrus had issued a decree allowing many of the exiled Jews to return to Judah. Older people remembered what it was like before the Babylonians came. Younger people would have known only what they had experienced living under Babylonian and Persian rule, though they had likely been told stories from their elders about God’s promise to restore their nation. God kept His promise to restore the Israelites. The returning exiles would face tough times during the coming decades as they sought to reestablish their nation. But God had a plan to care for His people. He would send Ezra and Nehemiah to help rebuild Jerusalem and to lead the people to true repentance, leading to full restoration in their relationship with God. Our children will learn that confession and repentance of sin is required of those desiring to have a right relationship with God.

Main Passages Ezra & Nehemiah

Memory Verse II Chronicles 7:14 (NIV)

Younger version

... if my people ... pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I ... will forgive their sin...

Older version

... if my people who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.

Ezra & Nehemiah

“Did you hear the news? We’re going home!” The word must have spread quickly that King Cyrus had issued a decree allowing many of the exiled Jews to return to Judah. Older people remembered what it was like before the Babylonians came. Younger people would have known only what they had experienced living under Babylonian and Persian rule, though they had likely been told stories from their elders about God’s promise to restore their nation. God kept His promise to restore the Israelites. The returning exiles would face tough times during the coming decades as they sought to reestablish their nation. But God had a plan to care for His people. He would send Ezra and Nehemiah to help rebuild Jerusalem and to lead the people to true repentance, leading to full restoration in their relationship with God. Our children will learn that confession and repentance of sin is required of those desiring to have a right relationship with God.

Main Passages Ezra & Nehemiah

Memory Verse II Chronicles 7:14 (NIV)

Younger version

... if my people ... pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I ... will forgive their sin...

Older version

... if my people who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.